

EDITORIAL

Welcome to the 10th Anniversary Edition of Offset.

It was with great excitement and a deal of trepidation that our little band of six met for the first time several months ago. Ahead of us was the mammoth task of putting together a journal that would encompass and celebrate the multitude of talents that reside within the grounds of Victoria University—whilst doing justice to the significance of Offset's 10th birthday.

It was with this in mind that we made the decision to ‘bring it back home’ by only accepting submissions from past and present Victoria University students from across many faculties and disciplines, in a bid to show the world just how good they really are—and you know what, we reckon we have succeeded!

We laughed, we blushed, we argued and compromised, and in the end agreed that the pages you are about to read contain the very best that Victoria University writers and artists have to showcase. We are also very proud to continue the new addition of a multi-media DVD containing songs, documentaries and animations which we are sure will delight and surprise.

We would like to acknowledge all those who had the courage to submit for publication, some for the first time. You made our task of whittling down so much harder.

Enjoy.
